THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Life's short span forbids us to enter on far-reaching hopes."
— Horace

The successful declarer always looks for a way to augment his chances. In today's deal, South found himself at the helm in four hearts after North set up a game force at his first turn. South showed his major-suit pattern without promising extras, then each player looked to extract support from their partner for their long suit. South won the day when North fessed up to a doubleton heart honor.

Having to choose between the pointed suits on lead, West opted for the unbid one and put a low diamond on the table. Declarer could see a spade and two trump losers on the likely 3-2 split; but if he could ruff one spade in dummy, that would give him two spade tricks, three minor-suit winners, one ruff and four trump tricks, for 10 in all.

However, South was not prepared to settle for that: He sought to find a way home even if hearts split 4-1. Aiming to set up dummy's clubs, declarer won the diamond in hand and ruffed a spade at trick three, then followed with a low club, which he ruffed small. He returned to the heart ace and ruffed another low club in hand, then gave up a trump, East showing out. West could draw two more rounds of trumps, but dummy discarded the losing diamond; when clubs broke, South had the rest. The extra chance of an even club split had paid dividends.

Note declarer's good technique in keeping the club ace in dummy. This way, he did not risk conceding an overruff or trump promotion if clubs were 4-2 and trumps 3-2.

ANSWER: Bid two spades if you dare. With a singleton in hearts, the quality of your spades is not paramount. The jump tells partner what you have and may allow you to sacrifice or even win the auction. You will cramp the auction and make it difficult for East-West to find their best spot. I would bid one spade at unfavorable vulnerability, though, where I consider jumps to be at worst a maximum weak two-bid.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

“Women and music should never be dated.”
— Oliver Goldsmith

When West opened one diamond, it was passed around to South, who upgraded his spot-cards and stretched to balance with two no-trump to show a balanced 19-20. North also took an aggressive position by raising. Still, despite North-South having just a combined 23-count, game had decent play.

Declarer won the spade king lead and went after hearts while his communications were still open. West took the heart king and cashed the spade jack, East following upward. Placing a spade stopper with South, West could count eight tricks for declarer once the spade queen was knocked out. As South was also likely to have diamonds stopped, the ninth trick could easily come from an endplay.

Had West defended passively, by exiting with a heart, declarer could set up his spade winner, then strip all of West's cards except diamonds, and next lead that suit from dummy. Because of his diamond nine, declarer would be able to duck the lead to West for a diamond return into his tenace.

So, West attacked dummy's entry before South could cash the spades. He shifted to the club 10, taken by the king. Declarer unblocked his heart honors and advanced the spade eight. However, West took the queen and played another club to dummy's ace. Declarer could throw a diamond on the heart jack, but then had to tackle diamonds. He played to his nine, but West won the diamond jack and exited safely with a spade. The diamond king scored the setting trick.

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. A one-no-trump advance should show just a little more in the way of high cards here. Besides, with only one quick stopper in the unbid suit and nothing in your own suit, which partner is probably short in, one no-trump will not play well. Two diamonds should be the right part-score and may serve to slow partner down as well as anything.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"I am the master of my fate;
I am the captain of my soul."
— William Ernest Henley

Sometimes, destiny seems to produce a deal straight from the textbooks, albeit a very advanced manual in this case. In the North American Swiss Teams, this deal was played around the room and had the smell of a contrived hand about it, with the opponents' cards cooperating completely.

After a light weak-two opening by West, Steve Levy of Las Vegas was virtually stamped into bidding four spades on the South cards — not too unwillingly, until he saw the virtually useless dummy come down. Even though the North hand was one card away from a genuine Yarborough, Levy did his best to exploit such meager assets.

The defense led two rounds of hearts. Levy ruffed and played the spade jack out of his hand! That put East in a dilemma. If he ducked, it would allow declarer to play diamonds from his hand (retaining the diamond two) to establish the suit. If he took his queen, then whether he played another heart (which would be ruffed in dummy) or a plain suit, declarer would have just enough spades left to draw trumps and cross to dummy with his diamond two, to eventually play a club toward his king.

Instead, East took his spade queen and exited in trumps. Levy won in dummy, finessed in diamonds and drew trumps. Dummy's diamond eight provided an entry to play up to the club king.

As North proudly pointed out, his hand had been good for two tricks, "but not quite enough to redouble, partner!"

ANSWER: Bid two hearts. This type of hand, weak with a fair six-card suit, is perfect to act with. As you have shown, you cannot double to show values, which would start at around a 9-count, so this is non-forcing. You might prefer another high card or some more shape, but you cannot have everything.
